The Lost City:

Depopulation and Abandonment in Englewood, Chicago

In 1950, Englewood was the 9th most populous community area in Chicago, with 94,134 people living in 20,000 homes. Today, it is the 27th, with 30,354 people in 8,000 homes. Both culturally and economically, Englewood has been a thriving community. Both culturally and economically, Englewood has been a thriving community. Both culturally and economically, Englewood has been a thriving community